

‘WHAT IN THE WORLD AM I GOING TO DO?’

“Just over the limit”—the financial limit—is what brought Debbie to Catholic Charities seeking help. “I could pay for oil,” she said. “I just didn’t have enough money to pay for a broken furnace.”

With a disabled husband in a nursing home, and medical issues preventing her from returning to work as a caregiver, Debbie became fraught with worry when the heat didn’t kick on one day.

“I just hated to ask anyone for help, but I thought, ‘what in the world am I going to do?’” The last couple of years have been rough, as ongoing extensive medical bills (a result of a six-month hospital stay) gobble up their Social Security and small pension.

“I am still able to get by, but there’s nothing for anything extra.”

Debbie was encouraged to apply for heating help, but when she did, the agency told her that her income was just over the limit for assistance. However, they provided her with the names of five other agencies that could help.

“Catholic Charities was the last name on the list I called,” she said. “And the only one to help. They gave me $359. I was able to add $200 to it to get the furnace fixed.”

“I think it’s wonderful that the Church helps people in need,” she added. “I’m a Protestant, and I thought that would be a roadblock, but they weren’t judgmental, and everyone was so nice.”

Debbie said she now has two goals. “I want to go back to work, and as soon as I straighten up, I plan to give back to Catholic Charities. It’s God’s way of speaking, helping others—our neighbors—who need it, like me.”

Debbie, a recipient of Catholic Charities emergency funding, with Jean Johnstone, Catholic Charities executive director

Jean Johnstone, executive director of Catholic Charities, said Debbie’s story is a too-familiar one. Each year more people are seeking help, many of whom are middle class and falling through the cracks.

“They’ve worked their entire lives thinking Social Security and retirement would take care of them, and it doesn’t,” she said. “Any one of us could be a paycheck or two away from asking for help.”

Catholic Charities relies heavily on Catholic Ministries Drive dollars to help offset expenses for three offices that serve thousands annually throughout the Diocese.

“The Catholic Ministries Drive is essential to our existence. We have to keep the doors open to continue to help those in need.”

Denise and Peter Kreckel, CMD supporters and parishioners of St. Matthew Church, Tyrone

“CHRIST’S MESSAGE IS TO TAKE CARE OF OUR NEIGHBORS.”

In 1950 Peter Kreckel’s grandfather was a widower raising eight children when he was asked to donate money for the construction for the new parochial school. Instead, the blacksmith offered his talent to sharpen the workers’ chisels, an essential tool in their toolbox.

“My grandfather gave what he could, and it made a difference,” said Peter, who, along with his wife, Denise, are longtime area pharmacists. “We all have gifts, the things that we are capable of giving.

I can’t sharpen a chisel, but I can earn money to help support what Christ is asking me to do.”

Growing up, Peter said, he often passed the school – imagining his grandfather at work and reflecting upon the enormous contribution he made to his Catholic faith. It is a lesson that has continued to resonate with him and Denise. “We need to help all the people of our faith and even those who are not,” said Denise. “Christ’s message is to take care of our neighbors.”

Through her work as a pharmacist and at Centre Volunteers in Medicine, Denise said she sees people suffering physically, emotionally, and spiritually every day. “People in our community are falling through the cracks. Many of them are homeless, and many can’t speak English. As faithful Catholics, we need to help one another in whatever way we can.”

Added Peter, “This is our Church. The Church of Mother Teresa and John Paul II. It has an amazing history of faith, hope, and charity. We are called upon to give what we can, and it needs everyone’s support.”

Your birthdate _____
Spouse birthdate _____
Daytime phone _____
Email address _____

- I have included the Diocese of Altoona-Johnstown in my will.
- I would like to learn more about supporting the Diocese of Altoona-Johnstown through a bequest, a life income gift, or some other tax-wise gift plan. Please contact me.
- I would like to support my faith through appreciated stock and/or qualified charitable distribution from my IRA. Please contact me.

2020 CATHOLIC MINISTRIES DRIVE

Mail to: 2020 Catholic Ministries Drive
Diocese of Altoona-Johnstown
PO Box 409
Hollidaysburg, PA 16648-0409

Any questions or concerns, please contact:
Office of Stewardship and Development
814.695.5577 or pseasoltz@dioceseaj.org

Learn more about your Diocese online at:
www.dioceseaj.org